Maksim Jujukin

Abstract

On reconstruction and interpretation of some ancient anthroponymical stems in the slavonic languages

In the article, the origin of several personal names mentioned in the medieval sources and extracted from different Slavonic languages is discussed. Some of them are not attested and are reconstructed on the basis of both anthroponymical and (or) toponymical derivatives. These examples cover all basic types of Slavonic anthroponyms and of their representation in the onomastic system as well.

Keywords: anthroponym, Slavonic languages, reconstruction, etymology, toponym, isolex